

CREATIVE PHOTOGRAPHY

WHAT IS THIS OPPORTUNITY ABOUT?

As part of the IRL trial led by Born in Bradford team, we are inviting young people to take part in a special opportunity: to tell their own story and being part of this research through creative photography.

We want to see the world from their perspective, what their life is like, the things that are important to them, and the kind of things they do.

Participants will take part in two workshops at school led by artist and photographer Carolyn Mendelsohn.

- The first workshop will introduce the 'Through Our Lens' photography project and give participants ideas, guidance and practical tips on how to take exceptional photographs using their mobile phone or disposable camera (we will provide the cameras).
- The second workshop will give the young people an opportunity to review their photographs and help select the images.

 NO PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE IS NECESSARY.

HOW THE PHOTOGRAPHS MAY BE USED

As part of taking part in the project, the opportunity that some of the photographs created by participants may be selected for use in publications relating to the study and may also be included in a future exhibition.

Only the young person's first name and, where appropriate, their age will be used alongside the photographs.

Taking part in the photography project therefore involves giving permission for selected photographs to be published and potentially exhibited as part of the project. The photographs will not be used for commercial purposes.
